Holding a picnic in a cemetery may seem a rather grewsome festivity, but it worked happily in the town of Temple, the other day. All hands took hold and beautified the grounds, and the cemetery picnic was so successful that it will be repeated next year.

Prof. George Colby Chase, who has been chosen president of Bates college, comes of an old New England family which sprang from one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He has for more than 20 years been con-nected with the college of which he has now been chosen president, and has done a splendid work for the institu-tion. He has devoted himself chiefly to the English department, and has also taught Greek and Latin. He is a diligent student, and has given much study to educational methods.

Mrs. Lottie Baker of Montgomery strangled her four children, aged seven five, three and one year, Saturday, while, as is supposed, under the influence of morphine. She is now at the county jail in St. Albans.

There are now 119 prisoners at the house of correction at Rutland and only 76 cells for their accommodation. Beds are set up in various parts of the institution for prisoners serving short sentences. The report of the house of correction for the past two years shows 805 commitments, which is the largest number since the institution has been built.

How came the inventions and improvements of the century to be made? They were not conceived or born in the patent office at Washington, or in any government bureau, much less brought forward by the order of any public official. ## Novel Illustration.

A revolution in n-wspaper illustration, may be expected as a result of the enterprise of the Boston Journal in employing photographic pictures. The Journal was certain that success could be made with them and as a result of perfecting the process the Sunday Journal now is pictorially, as in other respects, a most interesting and criginal paper. During the coming summer particular attention is to be paid to printing photographs of New England scenes. Portraits of prominent people are also to be published, giving to the Illustrated Supplement of the Journal the same features that make Harper's Weekly so popular, while the other pages carry the news.

Yale Played Horse with Harvard in the Race.

Under the rowing conditions declared by the Harvard coachers most favorable for the success of their crew, Yale left the crimson oarsmen more than 17 lengths behind on the four-mile course down the Thames Thursday night. A gentle breeze, a calm sea and a flood tide were what the Harvard navy asked for and their prayer was answered, yielding their representative eight the most signal and indefensible defeat since Capt. Stevenson's boys in blue established the American intercollegists record over the savve water in giate record over the same water in

A quarter of a mile lead is margin which makes any boat race dull, unless a record goes down in the struggle, and Yale feels doubtful as to whether congratulations are in order or not after such a contest.

Hermann Denabaugh, a New Britain baker, was assaulted by two unknown men Friday morning and beaten so seriously he cannot recover. The assailants escaped.

Thirty thousand people saw the race, and that figure is at least the average, if not the maximum; for a Yale-Harvard 'varsity struggle on the Thames. The crowd was thoroughly cosmopolitan in character. Neither college seemed interested enough to send a good delegation.

Sold "Perfume Plants." [From Chicago Tribune.]

"Speaking of street fakirs," said the tall man of the party, "I used to know a fellow in Lawrence, Kan., who was the king of the crowd. He could make money out of anything. A block of common soap was worth many dollars o him as a grease eradicator or something of the kind, and for an outlay of a few cents he could turn pockets full of cash.

"One day this young fellow came to me and asked me in a mysterious man-ner to go into a loft with him. I went, and there found one of the most ingenious outfits I ever saw or heard of for 'doing' a gullible community. This is what the outfit was:

"There were 100 small cloth bags, each filled with wet bran, In each bag was planted a cucumber seed. Under was planted a cucumber seed. Under the warmth and dampness these seeds would soon sprout, and then my young friend would take each bag and dip it into a tub filled with highly perfumed water. Then the small flat leaves which first sprout would be carefully taken off, leaving the next leaves, which are rough and wrinkled and do not bear such strong evidence of identity. Then such strong evidence of identity. Then the hundred bags with their spronts would be put in boxes and carefully would be put in boxes and carefully carried to some 'jay' town, where my young friend would actually get fifty cents apiece for them as 'perfume plants.'

"The plan was worked by him successfully a number of times, and he always managed to get away without being jointed. He was a fluent talker.

ways managed to get away without being injured. He was a fluent talker and aiways disposed of his 'perfume plants' in an easy manner. Then, as persons who have been caught at any such 'sucker' game do not care to 'squeal,' his chances of detection were reduced to a minimum.
